Camellia chair

Clever aged care furniture is designed for aesthetics, comfort and safety. We understand that in care environments every detail matters. A chair isn't just a place to sit — it plays a vital role in comfort, wellbeing, safety and even dignity. That's why our health care chairs are designed with a thoughtful balance of resident and patient needs with facility requirements in mind.

Our chairs are carefully crafted to provide exceptional support with high back options and ergonomic cushioning that help maintain posture while reducing strain on the body.

Pressure-relieving foams add an extra layer of protection, ensuring residents can sit for extended periods without discomfort. The seat height and firm armrests are set at the ideal level to make sitting down and standing up easier, promoting independence while reducing the risk of falls.

Our solid timber furniture – bedside, dining and coffee tables and dining chairs are crafted from certified and durable Australian timber or European Beech. Laminate and metal framed options are available to satisfy strength and hygienic considerations.

Safety is forefront of our designs- stable, non-slip bases and strong, durable frames provide peace of mind, while softly rounded edges reduce the chance of bumps and injuries.

For added functionality, optional reclining features and lockable castors allow chairs to be adjusted or repositioned easily, supporting both resident comfort and staff efficiency.

Square Sofa Set

Hygiene is another essential consideration in Aged Care furniture.

We use recommended healthcare-grade fabrics that are antibacterial, stain-resistant, and easy to clean ensuring a safe and hygienic environment for users.

Our upholstery is designed to withstand the demands of frequent cleaning with clinical-grade disinfectants while retaining its comfort and appearance.

Chairs can be finished with double-stitched seams to prevent leakages and provide superior durability, giving facilities confidence in long-lasting performance.

Beyond functionality, we believe Clever care furniture should create a warm and welcoming environment.

Our lounge chairs are designed to look inviting rather than clinical, with a wide selection of fabrics, colours and finishes available to complement any interior.

This residential feel not only enhances the overall space but also helps users feel more comfortable and at ease.

Considerations for Aged Care

1. Ergonomics and Accessibility

Aged care furniture is designed to support posture and ease of movement.

Seat heights, armrests, and back angles are carefully calculated to help residents sit and stand safely, reducing strain and fall risk.

2. Infection Control and Hygiene

Healthcare lounges use antimicrobial, easy-to-clean materials such as medical-grade vinyls and sealed upholstery.

This helps prevent bacterial buildup and supports regular cleaning with hospital-grade disinfectants.

3. Safety and Durability

Rounded edges, stable bases, non-slip legs, and reinforced frames are essential.

These reduce injury risk and ensure the furniture withstands heavy use over time.

4. Comfort and Wellbeing

Soft cushioning, warm colours, and home-like aesthetics help create a therapeutic environment.

Research shows that familiar and calming surroundings improve residents' emotional health and reduce anxiety.

5. Mobility and Flexibility

Furniture often includes casters, lightweight frames, and modular designs to allow for easy rearrangement, supporting both individual rest and social interaction.

Conversly, mental health facilities often require weighting of furniture as a safety feature.

6. Compliance with Standards

Designs must align with healthcare and aged care compliance standards such as AS/NZS 4688 (strength and durability of furniture), and fire safety and accessibility guidelines (e.g., AS 1428).

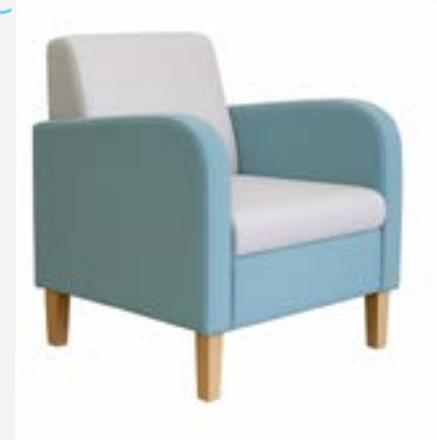

Lounge Areas

Our range is designed specifically to support aged care

Aged care and healthcare environments such as hospitals, clinics and assisted living facilities require furniture that balances comfort, functionality, safety, and hygiene.

Lounge furniture in these spaces is not only about aesthetics or relaxation it plays a vital role in patient recovery, wellbeing and dignity.

Unlike residential furniture, healthcare furniture must meet strict standards for infection control, ergonomics, accessibility, and durability. It must accommodate a wide range of users, including the elderly, those with limited mobility, mental health and individuals recovering from illness or surgery.
